

Insert the pointed end of the Norseman and run it along the spine of the bait.

Allow it to rotate and continue threading it through the bait until the pointed end is inside the mouth.

Stop the threading when the point is visible but not protruding beyond the mouth.

Open the snap and punch it through the lower jaw, then the hole in the metal, and through the head.

Close the snap to secure the bait and close the mouth. Then bend to achieve the desired action.

And there's your bait all rigged and ready to fish!
